

Are your dealings with trustees and volunteers legally sound?

December 2009

Hello again

You could be forgiven for thinking that we only ever write to you about the most worrying aspects of running a charity or NGO. However, far from wanting to make you feel that there are so many legal and bureaucratic pitfalls that you might as well pack up and go home now, our aim is to reassure you that there are safe ways to proceed.

Here's our sixth featured 'tricky' topic: payment to trustees and arrangements with volunteers. To find out how to avoid trouble concerning your most valuable resource – people, click this link.

You can also view previous articles on other important issues such as Mergers and Alliances, Fraud Prevention, Governance, Trustee Indemnity Insurance and Gift Aid via the same link.

And finally, we've produced a 'Charities Health Kit' which contains a host of invaluable information for you. It's free – all you have to do is click on the icon at the top right of this page to go to the Request Form. Simply fill it in, email it to us, and we'll do the rest.

Best wishes, Nigel SG Harper
Director
